LEASES

A lease is a document that records the contract between the landlord and the tenant.

Written Leases

Most written leases contain the following provisions:

- a description of the property the tenant is renting;
- the length of time the tenant will be allowed to live in the unit;
- the names of the landlord and the tenant;
- the amount of rent, the due date and any late charges for late payments of rent;
- the landlord's rules and regulations;
- the tenant's rights and responsibilities;
- responsibilities for maintenance of the unit;
- provisions for utility services (whether or not payment of utilities is included in the rent charge); and,
- the amount of the security deposit, if any.

A written lease may also contain one or more of the following provisions:

- sublease arrangements (terms under which the tenant may rent the apartment to someone else);
- laundry and recreational facilities (whether any are included); and,
- which appliances, if any, are provided by the landlord.

If there is no written lease, the landlord and tenant may agree upon terms orally.

Oral Leases

An oral agreement is arrived at between the landlord and tenant after a discussion of rental items. It is usually a month to month agreement – that is, the rent is paid on a monthly basis and the tenancy continues indefinitely until either the landlord or the tenant terminates it. An oral lease, like a written lease, is binding on both parties; however, an oral lease is more difficult to enforce and its terms are more difficult to prove because it comes down to one person's word against another's.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE TENANT

The tenant is required to do the following:

- Pay the rent on time. If the rent is not paid by midnight of the ninth day after the day it is due (for yearly or month-to-month tenancies) or midnight of the fourth day after it is due (for week-to-week tenancies), the landlord may start legal proceedings to evict the tenant.
- Keep the apartment and the surrounding areas clean and in good condition. (For example, garbage should not be piled up or left around, but should be disposed of promptly.)
- Keep noise to a level that will not disturb your neighbors.
- Repair any damage occurring to the apartment through the fault of the tenant, family members or guests. If there is major damage, the tenant should notify the landlord at once.

- Notify the landlord immediately if the apartment needs repairs through no fault of the tenant.
- Give the landlord permission, on advance notice, to enter the apartment at reasonable times to inspect the place or to make any necessary repairs.
- Notify the landlord of any extended absence from the apartment so he or she can keep an eye on things.
- When moving out, give the landlord proper advance notice, be sure that the apartment is in the same condition as when the tenant moved in and return the key to the landlord promptly.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE LANDLORD

The landlord is required to provide:

- a clean apartment when the tenant moves in;
- clean common areas (hallways, stairs, yards, entryways);
- well-lit hallways and entryways; and,
- properly working plumbing and heating (both hot and cold running water).

In addition, the following may be required by state and local housing, health and fire codes:

- properly repaired and safe stairways, porches, floors, ceilings and walls;

- good locks on the doors to the apartment;
- safe fire exits from the building;
- two electrical outlets in each room;
- viewing devices on doors that open onto a hall way (in some communities);
- extermination service if the apartment is infested with pests or rodents; and
- a smoke detector that is in working order.

Landlords should check the appropriate state and local agencies to see what applies to their properties.

CHECKING THE APARTMENT

It is very important for the tenant to check any apartment that he/she is considering renting for unsafe and unhealthy living conditions, so that these conditions can be corrected prior to signing the lease. Some conditions to look out for include the following:

- kitchen appliances that don't work properly;
- plumbing problems (leaking faucets, broken toilets and bathtubs);
- inadequate heat or hot water;
- doors without locks;
- building problems (leaking roof, broken windows, peeling paint, falling plaster);
- broken or unsafe steps;
- unlit hallways;
- pest problems (rats, roaches or rodents);
- overcrowding (many tenants located in the same location);

- hazardous electrical wiring or equipment;
- bad odors (the smell of garbage); and,
- other conditions in the apartment that appear unsafe or unhealthy.

In addition, both the landlord and the tenant will benefit from inspecting the apartment together and agreeing upon the conditions when the tenant moves in. A sample checklist appears on the following pages. This checklist, completed by both landlord and tenant, will be helpful if there is a security deposit dispute when the tenant moves out.

DISCRIMINATION

Discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, marital status, age, lawful source of income, familial status, learning disability, physical or mental disability or sexual orientation is prohibited by law. Any person who feels that he or she has been discriminated against may file a complaint with the Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities (CHRO) immediately after the problem has occurred. While it is not necessary to hire a lawyer to file a complaint, it may be helpful to discuss the problem with a lawyer.

Discrimination against families with children is also prohibited by law, with some exceptions. Landlords are allowed to discriminate against families with children when renting the following:

- buildings with four units or less if the landlord lives in one of the apartments,
  - and some federal and state housing projects.
- Contact the Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities for further information on discrimination.

SECURITY DEPOSITS

Most landlords require a security deposit when a new tenant moves in. The security deposit is an advance payment that is used to protect the landlord from damages to the apartment or unpaid rent. It is not applied to the rent bill but is completely separate.

By law, the security deposit may not be any more than two months' rent; however, if the tenant is 62 years old or older, it may not be more than one month's rent. The deposit is held by the landlord on behalf of the tenant; the landlord merely has a security interest in the funds.

The landlord is required by law to put the full amount of the security deposit into an escrow account where it will earn annual interest at a rate set by the Banking Commissioner. The tenant is entitled to the interest for all months in which the rent is paid on time (within the applicable grace period). With certain exceptions, the tenant will not receive interest for any months in which the rent was paid after the grace period. A landlord who fails to pay the interest due on the security deposit may be sued for the amount or may be subject to a fine.

Moving Out

The landlord must return the security deposit within thirty (30) days after the tenant moves out, if the tenant has not caused damage to the premises. The landlord must return the full security deposit, plus interest. If the tenant has damaged the premises, the landlord must return the balance of the security deposit, if any, and must provide an itemized list of what was charged for the damages.

The tenant must give the landlord written notice of his or her forwarding address so that the landlord knows where to send the money. A landlord who does not respond within thirty days may be liable for double the amount of the security deposit.

The tenant may also wish to do the following to ensure a prompt return of the security deposit:

- Review the lease and follow all of its provisions, especially those involving notice to the landlord of the move.

- Conduct an inspection of the apartment with the landlord using a checklist. Compare it to the checklist completed before the tenancy began.
- Take photographs of the apartment and have a third party inspect it.
- Clean the apartment.
- Repair all damage to the apartment caused by the tenant, the tenant's family members or the tenant's guests.
- Keep a file with copies of all communication with the landlord – the lease agreement, rent checks and/or receipts, written notices to or from the landlord, inspection checklists, etc.
- Make all rental payments on time.

Damages

The following are considered damages for which the landlord may keep some or all of the security deposit:

- property damage other than normal wear and tear;
- excessive cleaning costs required because the apartment was left in an unsanitary condition; and,
- unpaid rent.

The security deposit may not be used as a penalty payment because the landlord feels that the tenant has somehow violated a term of the lease.

A landlord or tenant who has questions about security deposits may contact:

Security Deposit Investigator
State Banking Department
260 Constitution Plaza
Hartford, CT 06103
(860) 240-8299

Going to Court (Small Claims)

A tenant who feels that his or her security deposit is being wrongfully withheld, or a landlord who believes a tenant owes money for unpaid rent or for damage, may bring a small claims suit, provided that the dollar amount claimed is under $5,000.00. These suits may be filed in the housing session, if the premises is located in a town that falls under a Housing Session, in the appropriate Small Claims area location or in the Centralized Small Claims Office which processes all small claims matters statewide.

A more detailed explanation of the small claims process is available in booklet form at all Housing Session locations and Small Claims area locations.

RENT INCREASES

A landlord has the right to raise the rent. However, the rent cannot be increased during the term of a written lease unless the parties have specifically agreed to the contrary. Also, a landlord is not required to give a particular amount of notice to the tenant of a proposed rental increase (for example, a thirty day notice) unless such prior notice was previously agreed upon.

If the landlord and tenant cannot agree upon a new rental amount, the tenant is still required to offer whatever the tenant considers to be the fair rental value of the apartment. That may be the old rent or a higher amount that is less than the landlord is seeking.

As long as the tenant offers what is honestly believed to be the fair rental value of the apartment, the landlord may not be able to evict for nonpayment of rent. However, the landlord may be able to evict for another reason, such as because the lease has expired or because the right or privilege to occupy the premises has terminated.

Some cities and towns in Connecticut have Fair Rent Commissions. (See pages 14-15.) These commissions receive complaints from tenants who feel that their rents are too high, investigate the complaints and hold hearings to determine the fair rental value of a particular unit. A lawyer is not necessary, but may be helpful.

The commission may be utilized by a tenant who:

- feels that a proposed rental increase is unfair;
- is being charged for utilities that were previously included in the rent; or
- believes that the rent is unfair because of unsafe or unhealthy conditions which violate the housing code.

Only a tenant who resides in a city or town with a Fair Rent Commission may file a complaint with the Commission.

EVICCTIONS (SUMMARY PROCESS)

The only legal way a landlord can remove a tenant from the property is through a court eviction action called summary process. An eviction action may be brought for the following reasons:

- lapse of time (the lease term has expired and the tenant has not moved out);
- nonpayment of rent when due or within the grace period;
- violation of a term of the lease or of a tenant's duties and responsibilities;
- nuisance or serious nuisance;
- no right or privilege to occupy the premises; and,
- the right or privilege to occupy has terminated.

To begin the eviction proceedings, the landlord must first serve the tenant with a Notice to Quit. The notice is formally served by a state marshal or an indifferent person. It states the date that the tenant must voluntarily leave the apartment and the reason for eviction.

If the tenant has not moved voluntarily within the given time period, the landlord will have a state marshal serve a Summons and Complaint on the tenant.

The summons is an official court form that tells the tenant that an eviction action is being brought against him or her. The return date on the form tells the tenant when to file papers with the court, not when to go to court for a hearing.

The tenant has two days after the return date to file a paper called an Appearance or he or she may lose the case by default. It is extremely important for the tenant to file an appearance and an answer to the complaint promptly. A landlord may obtain an execution to have a state marshal physically remove a tenant and his or her belongings in as little as five days after the date of judgment, excluding Sundays and legal holidays.

All of the courts that handle evictions have simplified forms and instructions which aid both landlords and tenants who wish to represent themselves. In addition, the courts have specially trained housing specialists to mediate housing cases.

Stay of Execution

If the tenant loses, the tenant is allowed to remain in the apartment for five days, not including Sundays, legal holidays and the date of judgment. This is called a Stay of Execution. Notice of judgment is mailed, with an explanation of the tenant's rights.

If an eviction judgment is entered because of nonpayment of rent, a tenant who pays all of the back rent to the court within five days of the date of judgment may apply for up to three months to stay in the premises.

If an eviction judgment enters against the tenant for lapse of time, violation, or where the right to occupy has terminated, he or she is allowed to remain in the apartment for five days from the date of judgment and may apply for up to six months more.

As soon as the stay of execution expires, the landlord may get an execution to remove the tenant and his or her belongings from the apartment. A state marshal must serve the tenant or leave a copy of the execution notice at the premises.

Further information on the eviction process is contained in A Landlord's Guide To Summary Process or A Tenant's Guide to Summary Process. Both publications are available in courts handling housing matters.

UTILITIES

Landlords are required to keep all heating, plumbing, electrical systems and appliances in good working order. Unless the rental agreement states that the tenant is responsible, the landlord must supply running water and reasonable amounts of heat and hot water.

If it is the landlord's responsibility to provide and pay for heat, the law requires the temperature of the apartment to be at least 65 degrees at all times of the year.

If problems arise with utilities supplied by the landlord, the tenant should:

- Contact the landlord first. State the problem in writing and follow up with a call.
- If the utility is not restored, contact the local Health Department or Housing Code Office. They have the power to contact the landlord and inspect the apartment.
- Contact the local police department.
- Restore the utility and deduct the cost from the rent.
- After two business days without a utility, obtain substitute housing until the utility is restored.

Where the tenant is responsible for supplying the utility, he or she should:

- make all payments on time; and
- contact the utility company to work out a payment plan.

Termination of Service

If the utility company plans to terminate service, it is required to give at least thirteen days notice. The notice will be mailed; it most likely will not be a separate letter but will be stated on the bill itself.

Tenants are protected from service termination in the following cases:

- If a member of the household is seriously ill. (In this case, the patient's doctor must provide a written notice and the tenant must make partial payment for utility service.)
- If it is Friday, Saturday, Sunday, a legal holiday, the day before a legal holiday or a day that the utility company's business office is closed.
- If partial payment (at least 20% of the balance due) has been made. (The utility company will not be able to turn off service once they receive this payment, but must send another notice giving thirteen more days.)
- Utility service may not, under any circumstances, be turned off from November 1st to April 15th if a tenant's income is low and the tenant receives assistance from Supplemental Security Income, Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF), or General Assistance, or if the only income he or she receives is from Social Security, Veteran's compensation, or pension or unemployment compensation.

If the tenant cannot pay the bill or wishes to contest the amount of the bill, the tenant should:

- contact the company and speak to a customer service representative; and,
- speak to the company review officer next if no agreement is reached with the customer service representative.
